

The history

And every Greeke of mettell let him know,
What Troy meanes fairely, shall be spoke aloud.
We haue great Agamemnon heere in Troy,
A Prince calld Hector, Priam is his father,
Who in his dull and long continued truce,
Is restle growne: He bad me take a Trumpet,
And to this purpose speake. Kings, Princes, Lords,
If there be one among the fairest of Greece,
That holds his honour higher then his ease,
And feeds his praise, more then he feares his perill,
That knowes his valour, and knowes not his feare,
That loues his Mistresse more then in confession,
(With truant vowes to her owne lips he loues)
And dare avowe her beautie, and her worth,
In other armes then hers: to him this challenge
Hector in view of Troyans and of Greekes,
Shall make it good, or do his best to do it:
He hath a Lady, wiser, fairer, truer,
Then euer Greeke did couple in his armes,
And will to morrow with his Trumpet call,
Mid-way betweene your tents and walls of Troy,
To rouse a Grecian that is true in loue:
If any come, Hector shall honor him:
If none, heele say in Troy when he retires,
The Grecian dames are sun-burnt, and not worth
The splinter of a Lance. Euen so much.

Agam. This shall be told our louers Lord Aeneas,
If none of them haue soule in such a kinde,
We left them all at home, but we are souldiers,
And may that souldier a meere recreant prooue,
That meanes not, hath not, or is not in loue:
If then one is, or hath a meanes to be,
That one meetes Hector: if none else I am he.
Nest. Tell him of Nestor, one that was a man
When Hectors grand-fire suckt. He is old now,
But if there be not in our Grecian hoste,
A noble man that hath no sparke of fire
To answer for his loue, tell him from me,

of Troilus and Cresseida.

He hide my siluer beard in a Gould beauer,
And in my vambrace put my withered braunes
And meeting him tell him that my Lady,
Was fairer then his grandam, and as chaste,
As may bee in the world, (his youth in flood)
He proue this troth with my three drops of blood,

Aene. Now heavens for-fend such scarcity of men.

Ulis. Amen. faire Lord Aeneas let me touch your hand,
To our pavilion shall I leade you fir;
Achilles shall haue word of this intent,
So shall each Lord of Greece from tent to tent,
Your selfe shall feast with vs before you goe,
And finde the welcome of a noble foe.

Ulis. Nestor.

Nest. What saies Ulis?

Ulis. I haue a yong conception in my braine,
Be you my time to bring it to some shape.

Nest. What is it?

Ulis. Blunt wedges riue hard knots, the seeded pride,
That hath to this maturity blowne vp
In ranke Achilles, must or now be cropt,
Or shedding breede a nursery of like euill,
To ouer-bulk vs all.

Nest. Well and how?

Ulis. This challeng that the gallant Hector sends,
How euer it is spread in generall name
Relates in purpose onely to Achilles.

Nest. True the purpose is perspicuous as substance,
Whose groseness little characters sum vp:
And in the publication make no straine,
But that Achilles weare his braine, as barren,
As banks of libia (though Apollo knowes Tis dry enough) will with great speed of iudgement,
I with celerity finde Hectors purpose pointing on him.

Ulis. And wake him to the answer thinke you?

Nest. Why tis most meete; who may you elce oppose,
That can from Hector bring those honours off,
If not Achilles: though't be a sportfull combat,
Yet in the triall much opinion dwells:
For here the Troyans tast our deerst repute,
